- 1p 1  Hoe kunnen ouders helpen voorkomen dat hun tienerkinderen in de problemen raken volgens het onderstaande artikel (tekst 1)?

tekst 1

Are your teens headed for trouble?

IF YOU'VE tried everything to keep your teenagers out of trouble, psychologists say there is a new, simple remedy.

Dr. Blake Bowden, of the Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center, and Dr. Jennie M. Zeisz, of DePaul University, studied a group of 527 teens and assigned them to a "well-adjusted" or a "not well-adjusted" group.

Then they recorded the number of times per week those kids ate an evening meal with their families at home.

The "well-adjusted" youths — the ones least likely to do drugs, get depressed and who were more motivated in school — had supper with their household members an average of five days a week.

Return of Superman

SUPERMAN star Christopher Reeve, paralysed in a riding accident three years ago, is to return to acting — as a disabled man confined to a wheelchair.

Reeve, whose brave battle against his terrible injuries has made him a figurehead for the disabled, will star in a remake of Alfred Hitchcock's 1954 James Stewart and Grace Kelly thriller, Rear Window.

In the original, Stewart played a photographer who was wheelchair-bound in his apartment after breaking a leg.

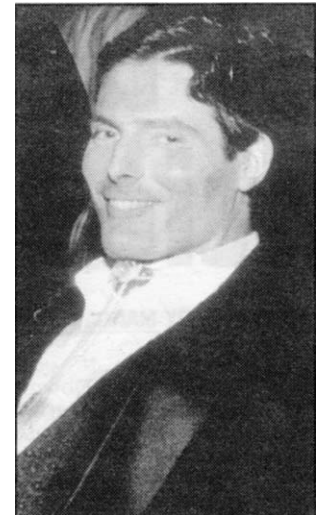

He fights boredom by spying on his neighbours and is convinced he has witnessed a murder. The script has been rewritten so the lead character is now paralysed and the picture will more graphically show the difficulties such handicapped people have to overcome.

Since being paralysed, Reeve has directed the acclaimed TV movie In The Gloaming, written an autobiography titled Still Me and campaigned to raise awareness for the fate of the physically disabled.

He has been discussing the Rear Window project for about a year but has not felt he was ready to return to acting until now.

Filming will begin at the end of this month near Reeve's home in New York.

Ha-ha-happy hols!

THIS week, the holiday couple who caught a flight they didn't want...

DICK Rothwell got on the wrong side of a Jumbo jet – and ended up in the sea.

Dick, 67, and his wife Mary were walking along a coastal road fringing the airport on the Greek island of Skiathos when they stopped to watch the plane take off.

Suddenly, as the jet boosted its huge engines, they were hit by the blast and blown off their feet. Dick was picked up and dumped waist-deep in the sea. Mary landed on the beach.

“We heard the engines roar and the next thing we were flying through the air,” said Mary, from Bolton, Lancs.

The couple were told the airport runway had recently been extended close to the road.

Greek authorities have agreed to install barriers to protect walkers and cars when aircraft are taking off or landing.

Drie lezeressen van het tijdschrift MIZZ hebben drie mannelijke modellen geïnterviewd. (tekst 4). De jongens hebben antwoord gegeven op een aantal vragen.

2p 4 □

Schrijf twee vragen in het Nederlands op, die de meisjes aan alle drie de jongens hebben gesteld.

Bring on the boys!

MIZZ took a back seat as readers Paula, Sammy and Sarah interviewed three models. We think they did a fantastic job!

THE MODELS Here's what Paula, Sammy and Sarah found out about our three hot boys...

DANIEL Age: 16
From: London
Agency: Boss, 7 Berners Mews, London W1

Sammy: "Daniel has been modelling for two months and really enjoys it. He's lucky 'cos he looks gorgeous without having to work out at the gym. He can also eat whatever he wants without putting on weight. We were pleased to hear he doesn't have a girlfriend at the moment, but he likes really tall girls so that counts us out!"

ALEX Age: 18
From: London
Agency: Select, 93 Newman Street, London W1

Paula: "Alex still lives with his mum and dad and has only been modelling for two weeks so this is his first job. He loves eating well and working out at the gym. He doesn't have a girlfriend either (hurrah!) and says he has a thing for curly-haired girls so it's perms all round for Sarah and Sammy!"

MATT Age: 22
From: London
Agency: Nevs, Regal House, 198 King's Road, London SW3

Sarah: "Matt has been modelling for eight months now and he's got his own flat and a really smart motorbike! Modelling is a full-time job for Matt, so he hasn't got much time for girls, although he does fancy blondes. He says that the only bad thing about modelling is having to wear make-up – we promised not to tell anyone!"

De broer van Miss Thornton scheurde pagina's uit zijn spannende boek en gaf ze aan het meisje dat naast hem zat in de trein (tekst 6).

BROUGHT TO BOOK

MY 30-year-old brother—a computer programmer—was looking forward to reading a thriller on the train during a business trip to London. But a girl sharing the seat had other ideas and kept advancing conversational titbits.

After a while, he turned to her and asked if she liked reading.

“Very much,” she replied, presumably hoping he’d start a discussion about his book.

Instead, he tore out the first two chapters and gave them to her. “I’ve finished these,” he said, “so you can start reading them.”

For the remainder of the trip, he ripped out the pages after he had read them and handed them to his silenced companion.

Hieronder wordt aan een aantal jongeren gevraagd of zij geloven in leven buiten de planeet aarde (tekst 8).

tekst 8

forreal ★

do you believe there's life on other planets?

real life

"I think there must be life on other planets. This universe is too big for Earth to be the only place with life. There are things out there. It's a waste of space if there aren't." – Allison, 15, Ariz.

"When people say that they've seen flying saucers or whatever, I think they're making it up. I don't think any of that is true, but I do think there's a big possibility that there's life on other planets." – Kurt, 13, Wis.

"Call me crazy, but I believe. I mean, there were traces of what seemed to be life on Mars. It might not have been intelligent, but it was life. We shouldn't dismiss the idea just because scientists haven't proven it yet. We haven't even begun to explore the outer ends of our own solar system." – Arthur, 13, Mich.

"I believe that there could be life on other planets, but I don't think they would look like the aliens we usually picture: green with huge black eyes. I also don't think they go cruisin' around in space-ships trying to abduct people." – Sally, 15, Wis.

"I definitely think there's life on other planets. Wherever they are, they're probably wondering the same thing. I hope one day we'll be able to interact with them." – Annaliza, 14, Calif.

"Gimme a break! Whoever came up with the idea that there's life on other planets obviously didn't have his brain in this galaxy! The idea is preposterous. For as long as we've been able to explore space, we would have found some signs of life by now if there were any. Even the UFO in Roswell, New Mexico, turned out to be just a weather balloon." – Ronald, 16, Mich.

Plenty of room on top after a bus meets a bridge too low

LOW bridge – high vehicle. The scene is all too familiar to rail chiefs exasperated by almost 5,000 such crashes in five years. So yesterday, Britain's most battered railway bridge – 82 hits in six years – took another pounding to launch a campaign highlighting the danger. Stunt driver John Carr crashed an old bus into the Whitehouse Road bridge in Swindon. The top deck was crushed as it struck at 25mph. The bridge survived once more, virtually unscathed.

Railtrack director Martin Reynolds said: 'The scene illustrates the need for more awareness among drivers about low bridges.'

The 5,000 crashes across the country have meant repairs costing £25million and disruption to services. Mr Carr, 43, emerged safely from the wreckage of the green and grey former Slough No 365 and admitted he 'thoroughly enjoyed' the stunt. 'It was very nice of Railtrack to invite me to do it.'
